Sexting is so two years ago

Folks, we need to have a grown-up conversation. I hate to be the bearer of bad news, but between U.S. Rep. Anthony Weiner's, um, wiener-gate and the hullabaloo surrounding the reported leak of some nude pics of Blake Lively (her rep told People the photos are fake, but that didn't stop me from taking a look) this week, it's time we retired the tradition of getting naked and then posting pictures of said nudity on the Internet.

We can do better. All this sexting and Myspace-era bathroom mirror nude shot stuff has to go, if only because recently the World Health Organization said cellphones have been indirectly linked to causing cancer. I don't know about you, but I'm not trying to expose my kibble and bits to any carcinogens.

Fellas, next time you get the urge to show that girl you met at your cousin's housewarming what you're working with via mobile phone, why don't you try one of these strategies instead.

Write a filthy letter

Seriously. Write down how you specifically want to make a booty sandwich with your sweet baboo. Be graphic. Then mail it via postage. Hey, when's the last time you heard about a celeb getting his or her mailbox hacked? Also, it's been the go-to move for centuries.

Record a song

There's something to be said for a certified panty-dropper track. Shoot a YouTube video in which you tell your love how you want to treat her like a human loofah. Or step your game up—call in a favor and get in the studio to record. Trust me, if a dude like Bruno Mars can keep getting ladies, you should be golden.

Create a stunt

Not a "Say Anything" re-creation, not a flash mob, a STUNT. Prove your love by jumping off of, crashing through or blowing up something. You want passion? I almost held up a bank to prove my undying affection for my last girlfriend. (By bank hold-up, I mean I made her breakfast.)

Boom. These audibles should give you another option when you're thinking of getting freaky-deeky next time. You could also, you know, just actually call the person you're about to send a wang picture to. Nah, that would be too crazy, wouldn't it? ERNEST WILKINS IS CHICAGO'S WINGMAN. This was a week for couplehood, with Illinois issuing its first licenses to same-sex couples looking to enter into a civil union. What with all the forever-after-fever in the headlines, RedEye officially has till-death-do-us-part on the brain. We're seeing lovebirds everywhere, including in these recent news stories.

COURSE CRUSADERS

Terrance Lyles
LENNY GILMORE/REDEYE

If crawling through mud and rappelling sounds like a good time, you're in for a really fun summer

By Anthony Roberts

FOR REDEYE

Terrance Lyles does a great Superman impression. The experienced marathoner put in 10 miles the day before completing last fall's Urbanathlon, an obstacle course that saw him scaling a wall and climbing over taxicabs in Grant Park. But one of the challenges almost proved to be his kryptonite.

"Climbing up the stairs at Soldier Field made my legs burn, and that burn was something else," said Lyles, 36, of Greater Grand Crossing. "It took me out for a while, but after my legs loosened back up, I was able to push through."

The Urbanathlon was Lyles' first crack at an extreme obstacle course, a type of race that pushes your physical limits—and lets you do some crazy stuff along the way. More people, in fact, are finding fun and fitness by climbing over monster truck tires and jumping over fire, among other over-the-top obstacles.

"These types of races are not just an event, it's a lifestyle," said Bob Babbitt, founder of Muddy Buddy, a six-mile course complete with a giant mud pit. "It's really struck a nerve with people."

In the case of Muddy Buddy, it's a hit with 350,000 people in 18 cities across North America. The race, set for next month in the northwest suburbs, started in 1999 as one event with 500 racers.

Rishi Vij, 29, did his first obstacle course just to have fun with his friends, but now he's completed races on his own, including Muddy Buddy and Urbanathlon. "It pushes me to my mental and physical limits," said the Streeterville resident, who's planning to do more obstacle courses this year. "If you're looking for fun and a workout, mission accomplished."

BLOOD, SWEAT AND BEERS

MEN'S HEALTH URBANATHLON

Oct. 15, downtown Chicago. $95 per person, $165 for a three-person relay

This 9-mile race uses objects found in everyday city living, including police barricades, city buses and taxis, to make up this concrete jungle gym.

» Craziest obstacle: The Soldier Field stair climb. Having to ascend and descend close to 900 stairs, you'll undoubtedly feel like your legs have been replaced with ramen noodles.

» The reward: Awards for those who place and finisher medals for the rest of the pack.

» Wild card: The first obstacle calls for athletes to walk along Jersey barriers (aka concrete lane dividers), balance beam-style. No word on whether Snooki will be there to cheer you on.

METRO DASH

July 16, Soldier Field. $50 a person, $180 per team of four

We'll call this one the "dirty 30," as 30 obstacles are mashed up to create this challenge designed by Navy SEALs.

» Craziest obstacle: While the "window jump" lets you release your inner cat burglar by leaping through an open makeshift window, the "Shawshank Redemption"-esque "black hole" will have you crawling in complete darkness.

» The reward: Everyone who finishes gets a T-shirt and a medal.

» Wild card: If you can't complete an obstacle after two attempts, you'll be assessed a penalty of five burpees—kind of a squat plus a push-up with a jump. Avoid them.

COLUMBIA MUDDY BUDDY

July 31, Gilberts. $150 per two-person team

Down and dirty fun undoubtedly will ensue in this leapfrog-style event that sees teams of two trading off among running, biking and five obstacles.

» Craziest obstacle: Can you say giant mud pit crawl?

» The reward: Finisher's medal, T-shirt, post-race food and live music. Oh, and did we mention beer?

» Wild card: If you've got an eye on global dominance, the local race is a qualifier for the world championships in Florida in December. Show me the Muddy!

WARRIOR DASH

June 18 & 19, Channahon (near Joliet). $65 Saturday, June 18, $55 Sunday, June 19

Billed as "the craziest frickin' day of your life, this 3.28-mile obstacle course is filled with costume-clad racers channeling their inner superhero to become the Ultimate Warrior, face paint and all.

» Craziest obstacle: You'd better be nimble and you'd better be quick, because you have to leap over fire as part of the "warrior roast."

Fire extinguishers will be on hand in case of any, um, great balls of fire.

» The reward: The top finishers get engraved steel warrior helmets and the craziest costume gets a prize as well. So basically, it's Flavor Flav's dream event.

» Wild card: Baby joggers and strollers are prohibited on the course, but the rules say nothing about baby hovercrafts. Yes!

Ready to take the physical challenge?

Sorry, but nothing about climbing up and over a city bus says "easy." The best we can do is share some advice from experienced obstacle course racers. Good luck! A.R.

EXPECT THE UNEXPECTED

Some of the obstacles will be hard and unlike anything you've ever done before. "Rappelling down a Navy Pier tower and synchronized swimming were [both] first-time activities for me," said Rishi Vij, of Streeterville.

MIND OVER MATTER

Getting your head in the race is key. "Make sure you go into this with a positive attitude. It'll help you when you're out of gas," said Greater Grand Crossing's Terrance Lyles.

LISTEN UP

While some are determined to gut it out, Lyles suggests that you not overdo it. "Listen to your body, that's really important," he said. "Push through, but make sure you're in tune with what your body is saying."

CHEERLEADERS WANTED

Bring some friends and family along for an extra boost. "If you have that support, they can usually high-five you or tap you on the back and say, 'You can do this,'" Lyles said.

REMEMBER: YOUR GOAL IS TO FINISH

When the finish line seems far, find that inner push. "If you gotta walk, if you gotta crawl, just finish," Lyles said.

Cute & happy

By Glenn Gamboa

NEWSDAY

Who knew happiness could be such a problem?

Death Cab for Cutie built an impressive catalog of memorable indie-rock around heartache. On their breakthrough "Transatlanticism," they made the ache sound epic.

For "Codes and Keys," though, the ache is gone. Unfortunately, Death Cab didn't replace it. It's as if when the ache left, so did their ambitions and ideas.

The craftiness of Ben Gibbard's vocals and the inventive guitar work of Chris Walla is noticeably absent.

Instead of the disappointments of new years and the pain of drifting apart, we get Gibbard repeatedly singing, "We are alive," over a nice, safe groove in the title track. Uh oh.

"Codes and Keys" has some happy moments—the sprightly, string-filled "Stay Young, Go Dancing" is memorable as a pretty, lovey-dovey change of pace, while the playful, piano-driven "Portable Television" gallops off in unexpected directions.

But those bits only make the rest of the album seem that much more lifeless, though. The single "You Are a Tourist" is pleasant, but aimless modern rock, sort of like a kinder, gentler take on Modest Mouse's "Float On."

"Codes and Keys" finds Death Cab in a happier place spiritually—there have been marriages (including Gibbard's to actress-singer Zooey Deschanel) and kids born. What they need now is an interesting way to describe their new, more pleasant surroundings.

Once Upon a Time in the West

Available now

Serve up a bowl of pasta and dig into Sergio Leone's 1968 spaghetti Western. The gloriously restored epic comes complete with the original theatrical version and more than an hour of special features, including commentary from film historians, cast and crew. Henry Fonda plays a psychopath who annihilates a family upon orders of a powerful railroad tycoon; Jason Robards is a desperado wrongfully accused of the deed; Charles Bronson plays a harmonica-playing stranger who joins him on a quest to find the real killer. JIM CARNES, THE SACRAMENTO BEE

VIDEO GAME

L.A. Noire

Available now for XB360, PS3

"L.A. Noire" is more than another "Grand Theft Auto" game dressed up in stylish 1940s clothes. It's an entirely new experience that values story, dialogue and crime solving over mindless action. Rockstar claims that the game is roughly the equivalent to two seasons of a TV series, and the comparison is apt because the whole experience blurs the line between TV show and game. If you're arguing the case that video games have finally grown up, "L.A. Noire" would be Exhibit A.

BOOK

In the Garden of Beasts: Love, Terror, and an American Family in Hitler's Berlin

By Erik Larson

Erik Larson's non-fiction chronicle based on the lives of an American family who spent a year in pre-WW II Berlin as Hitler rose to absolute power raises the question the world still struggles with: How do we know implacable evil when we see it? When is enough enough? Larson has explored evil before, notably in "Devil in the White City," the true-to-life story of a serial killer at the 1893 Chicago World's Fair. Like "Devil," "Beasts" has its victims—Berlin's Jewish citizens, struggling as the Nazi noose tightens.

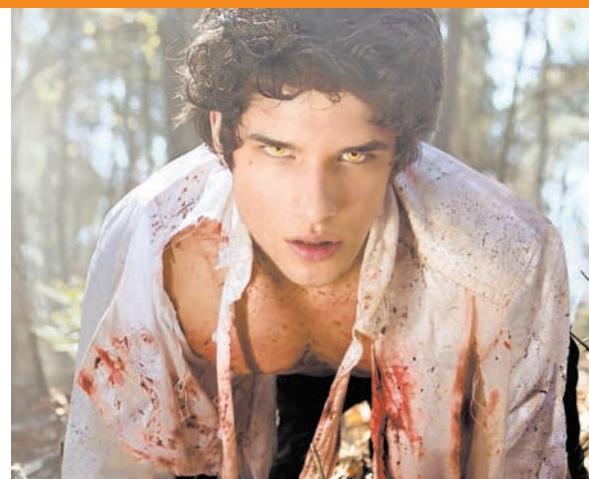

MARY ANN GWENN, THE SEATTLE TIMES

TV

The Glades

9 p.m. Sunday, A&E

The Florida-set crime drama begins its second season going for a more serious tone. But wise-cracking homicide detective Jim Longworth (charming Matt Passmore) hasn't lost any of his sarcasm, even though in the season premiere he's walking a dangerous line between rival drug lords as he works a case. Things really heat up in the second episode, when his old partner (on and off the job) from Chicago chases a serial killer to Palm Glade, leaving his sweetheart, Callie (Kiele Sanchez), feeling a little uncertain about where she stands. CURT WAGNER, REDEYE

10 p.m. Sunday, MTV

Don't expect this new series to be a cheesy ripoff of the 1985 Michael J. Fox comedy about a boy and his wolf curse. MTV is going the way of "The Vampire Diaries" instead, with a moody story about Scott (Tyler Posey), who is bitten by a local hunk/werewolf and soon is howling at the moon himself. There's a bit of "Romeo and Juliet" in the story too. Scott falls for the new girl at school, Allison (Crystal Reed), who has a secret of her own. CURT WAGNER, REDEYE; MTV PHOTO

It's a peach

By Matt Pais

The less-than-lovely stretch of Clybourn between Fullerton and Diversey doesn't exactly call for a charming neighborhood Italian joint. Since February, though, Bivona, named for owner Mark Delia's grandfather's hometown in Sicily, has quietly existed in that very Lincoln Park spot just down the street from newish pizza bar Red Flame.

What we ordered: Pizza fritta (deep-fried dough sprinkled with cheese; $7), house salad (including fennel, gorgonzola, toasted pine nuts, peaches; $8), large pizza verdura Bivona (spinach, green peppers, zucchini, eggplant, tomatoes, roasted red peppers, mozzarella; $16) and large Pizza di Armando (caramelized onions, pancetta, gorgonzola, mozzarella; $16).

The crust: Baked using house-made dough in the two-room restaurant's stone ovens, the pizzas come out with a mildly charred Neapolitan-style crust that's thin but possesses enough substance and elevation at the edges that your stomach actually recognizes you're eating. It's a little sweet and appealingly breakable (our verdura Bivona), though if undercooked the lack of texture tiptoes into blandness (di Armando).

The sauce: Neither a focal point nor useless, the effectively subtle sauce comes from San Marzano tomatoes, a low-acidity variety of plum tomato imported from Italy.

The toppings: This is where these pies shine. Fresh and generously applied, everything from spinach and caramelized onions to roasted red peppers and goat cheese (added to a large pizza for $1.50) had us eagerly anticipating each bite. Note: Peaches appear throughout the menu, an ode to the town of Bivona's annual peach festival.

Reheated in a toaster oven: Solid. Everything that makes the pizza more than the sum of its parts is maintained.

FYI: Don't be surprised if your server offers the zeppole dessert ($7), fried pizza dough topped with cinnamon sugar and meant to be dipped into peach caramel, for free. It's tasty but almost cartoonishly similar to the pizza fritta.

Bottom line: Repeat after us: Easy, free street parking. Cozy fireplace and exposed brick walls. Friendly-if-unpolished service. Good pizza, great specials (including half-priced large pizzas and $2 domestic drafts Thursday and a presence on restaurant.com). Go.

Bailiff

At its CD release show, this Chicago band celebrates its full-length debut, "Red Balloon," which is both intense and catchy and weird. Not a bad formula when so many bands are just plain forgettable and obvious. With Secret Colours, Box Jellyfish

10 p.m. Sat. $8-$10. Lincoln Hall, 2424 N. Lincoln Ave. 773-525-2501.

Q101 Jamboree: Awolnation

Quite possibly the most fun band you've never heard of. Calling it indie rock wouldn't really be accurate, since frontman Aaron Bruno (formerly of Under the Influence of Giants) frequently steers the music into both dance and harder rock territory. Enjoy. With Thirty Seconds to Mars, Seether, Papa Roach, Ed Kowalczyk, Sum 41, more.

Noon. Sat. $10.11-$75.00. First Midwest Bank Amphitheatre, 19100 Ridgeland Ave., Tinley Park. 877-598-8703.

Dengue Fever

This LA crew evokes chilling on a Brazilian island while still planning a big night ahead. Relaxation is rarely this slinky. With The Eternals, Young Boys.

10 p.m. Sat. $15. Empty Bottle, 1035 N. Western Ave. 773-276-3600.

Kids These Days

This eight-piece Chicago outfit blends hip-hop, rock and soul into a sound that grooves and sways with attitude and finesse. The group is young and hasn't been around terribly long, but we've got our eye on where they're going. With Rockie Fresh, DJ Stefan Ponce. 6 p.m. Sat. $11. Metro, 3730 N. Clark St. 773-549-0203.

Kopecky Family Band

No, they're not actually related, which means KFB joins Mumford and Sons in the "rising bands who are pretty good and total liars" category. (We kid, we kid, it's just a name.) Anyway, the Nashville rock collective's recent EP "The Disaster" is anything but. With Stolen Silver, Wildlife.

10 p.m. Sat. $8-$10. Schubas, 3159 N. Southport Ave. 773-525-2508.

Eddie Vedder's 'immediate gratification': a Martin ukulele

The Seattle Times

Your heart is hurting. So the last thing you need is to listen to sad songs of love lost, played on a plaintive little ukulele by none other than Eddie Vedder. Has he no mercy?

Still, you take in every note, every word on his new album, "Ukulele Songs," and then settle in to talk with Vedder, admitting you're a bit of a mess.

"You really heard the record then," Vedder says and then suggests you buy a ukulele and try to strum the soreness out of your soul.

That's what Vedder did with this, his second solo album, which was released Tuesday. "Ukulele Songs" is a collection of originals, one Pearl Jam song ("Can't Keep") and covers of the 1926 ditty "Tonight You Belong to Me" and the 1931 standard "Dream a Little Dream of Me."

Cat Power and The Swell Season's Glen Hansard turn up for cameos. But for the most part, it is just Vedder and his uke, a collaboration that seems to be just what he needed after 20 years of fronting the rock powerhouse Pearl Jam.

"How important that little instrument became to me," he said. "It was beyond a little batch of songs or how to express yourself."

A few years ago, Vedder was on a surfing trip in Hawaii with a friend. His friend went to buy fish, and Vedder, two cases of beer. He was sitting on them outside some stores when he noticed a Kamaka tenor ukulele, displayed in a drugstore window.

"I went in and picked it up and it sounded great," Vedder said. "And I must have had the cash on hand because I walked out with it."

He sat back down on the beer, took the ukulele out of the box and started fooling around.

"Immediately, a melody came out," he said. "It must have sounded like something."

Must have; passers-by tossed money into the open case. First a dollar, then 50 cents.

"It was immediate gratification that maybe I could go places with this thing," he said. "That's just the nature of that instrument."

"This little four-string songwriting tool started changing the way I brought songs to the group."

Over time, that little uke would become Vedder's constant companion. On airplanes, where he would carry it on—once getting stopped by a flight attendant because it had (presumably dangerous) strings. Into the studio, to record his soundtrack to the 2007 film "Into the Wild."

"As far as inanimate objects being friends goes," Vedder said, "I think that is right on the list. My Martin ukulele is a work of art. It's going to live long after me."

At times on the record, the ukulele seems to speak for Vedder, who sounds vulnerable yet hopeful, like a suitor standing on the porch with a fistful of daisies. Other times, the strings are trying to cajole him, cheer him, like a child dancing around him as he plays.

"If these songs were written on a conventional guitar with drop-D tuning, it would send you off a cliff," he said. "So I feel like writing sad songs on a happy instrument is what keeps it in the realm."

The LP version of "Ukulele Songs" will include a songbook—Vedder encouraging people to play for themselves.

"Things like guitars and ukuleles, you should never part with it," he said, "because there will probably be good, healthy times spent, just playing and writing."

Speaking of writing: Pearl Jam is currently working on its 10th studio album.

"We are each happily part of a gang," Vedder said of the band. "Let's plug in and play loud and fast and hard, and that will keep us from getting old and boring."

A lifeless 'Tree'

How to summarize a plot when there isn't one? In a nutshell, what you'll see in "The Tree of Life" is two 1950s parents (Brad Pitt, Jessica Chastain), their three young sons and one of the boys as an adult (Sean Penn) who barely speaks. Also: Many, many shots of plants, the sky, space and other non-human landscapes. And dinosaurs.

The verdict: The ridiculously inefficient "The Tree of Life" is 100 percent beautiful and 80-90 percent B.S., as writer-director Terrence Malick leans on nice cinematography to generalize about life's brightest and darkest elements with all the precision of a Coldplay song. This boring, frustrating movie's not a rumination on kids learning about the world's contradictions and tragedies; it's a hollow, incoherent display of visuals that never seems like an actual representation of an adult's memories of youth.

From unknown to the next starlet

Reuters

Jessica Chastain worries she might be the first unknown actress everyone will get sick of watching.

The 30-year-old redhead plays Brad Pitt's wife in Terrence Malick's "The Tree of Life," a meditation on life set against the background of a Midwestern family in the 1950s that opened Friday.

That's not the only film the newcomer has on her resume, nor the only A-list actors and directors who want to work with her. Later this summer Chastain stars in the drama "The Help," based on Kathryn Stockett's best-selling novel; "The Debt," an espionage drama starring Oscar-winner Helen Mirren; and the crime drama "The Fields" opposite Sam Worthington.

Two more of her films are scheduled to come out this fall—one opposite Al Pacino—and still others in 2012.

"I've made 11 films, nine are [waiting for release]," Chastain said. "I'm a little worried that people will get sick of me. But because the characters are so different in each film, hopefully they won't."

Blame it on Malick, the semi-reclusive but revered filmmaker who gave Chastain her big break in "Tree of Life." It was shot three years ago but Chastain said her association with the film instantly "changed my world" and "opened doors for me to work with other directors."

It's not the first break to come her way. A native of northern California, Chastain attended the prestigious Juilliard school in New York on a scholarship from Juilliard alumnus, actor and comedian Robin Williams, whom she has yet to meet.

"I know at some point I'm going to meet him and it will be really special," she said. "Because I'm the first person in my family to go to college and I feel he made that possible."

While in her last year at Juilliard, Chastain's class went to L.A. to showcase their talents to the entertainment industry. From there, Chastain landed a TV deal with Emmy Award-winning producer John Wells' company.

The transition to film occurred when Chastain was cast in the title role of an L.A. theater production of Oscar Wilde's "Salome," directed by and starring Al Pacino, in 2006.

Pacino's film version of the play, called

"Wilde Salome," is scheduled to premiere at the Venice Film Festival in September.

"I learned how an actor changes a performance from [being in] a theater of 1,400 people to a single camera," Chastain said. "Al was like my acting teacher during that whole process."

Things came to a head for Chastain at the Cannes film festival last month where "Tree of Life" not only walked away with the Palme d'Or, but her psychological thriller "Take Shelter," with Michael Shannon, won the grand prize in the Critics Week competition.

Things got even more intense at the festival when the Prohibition-era drama "The Wettest Country in the World"—which she shot with Shia LaBeouf—found itself in the middle of a bidding war between distributors. It was picked up by the Weinstein Company for a re-release in 2012.

"I will never experience anything like that again," said Chastain of her first Cannes experience. "I'm still recovering. It was a week of living on pure adrenaline, no sleep and a lot of excitement."

FROM A HUG TO A CUB?

By Scott Bolohan | FOR REDEYE

The last time the Cubs and Cardinals played, the Hug Heard 'Round the World happened when Albert Pujols and Cubs GM Jim Hendry embraced during batting practice.

Why was this notable? Because Pujols is a free agent and pundits saw it as more than just a friendly bromance. Any team would be interested in signing the prolific slugger, but the Cubs look particularly interested (read: desperate).

This offseason, they signed first baseman Carlos Pena to a one-year, $10 million deal, clearing any positional obstacle to signing Pujols.

With declining attendance at Wrigley Field, owner Tom Ricketts needs something to spark interest in the team and put his stamp on the organization. Nothing would do that more than signing your archrival's franchise player.

Is it possible? Maybe. Here's your guide to Pujols' actions for this weekend's series in St. Louis.

What quality is a necessity for the next Fire coach?	The ability to get Fired up, not Fired.	Nice ties.	A day job.	Would saying that he needs to have some "fire in his belly" be too on the nose?	The ability to coach his players in flopping better than LeBron James. Admittedly, a challenge.

Enter a number between 1 and 9 in the empty squares. The clues are the numbers in the white circles that give the sum of the solution numbers: above the line are across clues; below the line are down clues. Thus, a clue of 3 will produce a solution of 2 and 1, and a 5 will produce 4 and 1, or 2 and 3, but, of course, which squares they go in will depend on the solution of a clue in the other direction. No digit can be repeated in a solution. Answer at redeyechicago.com/puzzles. EDITED BY MICHAEL MEPHAM

Forecast for the 2011 MTV Movie Awards? Wildness

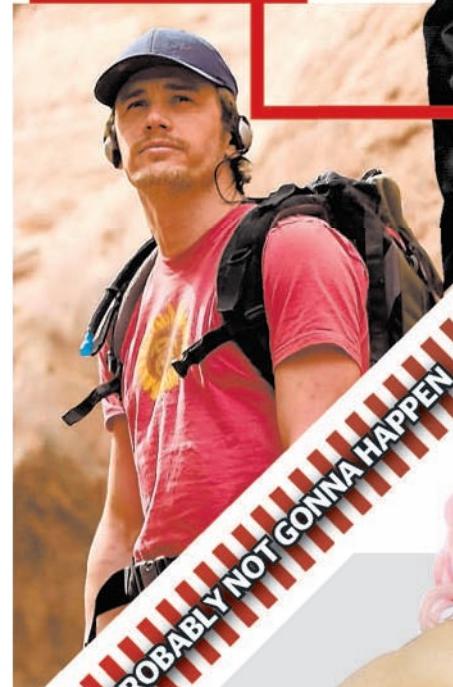

By Dana Moran

REDEYE

Parodies galore! Ridiculous award categories! We're getting all hot and bothered preparing for the 2011 MTV Movie Awards, airing live at 8 p.m. Sunday. While some of our favorite MTV awards moments in the past have included lady-on-lady smooching, F-bombs and Rainn Wilson with a teddy bear strapped to his crotch, this year's presenters, guests and nominees should lead to plenty of awesomeness. Here's how we think it'll go down. DAMORAN@TRIBUNE.COM

Blush-inducing jokes about host Jason Sudeikis being January Jones' secret babydaddy. Awwwkwarrrrd.

Best Jaw Dropping Moment nominee James Franco finally shows up without an arm. His popularity has been waning lately.

PROBABLY NOT GONNA HAPPEN

Nicki Minaj pulls a Lil Kim and wears a one-boob jumpsuit. Lil Kim then pulls Nicki Minaj's hair.

Those cheeky MTV coordinating people seat Shia LaBeouf between Rosie Huntington-Whiteley and Megan Fox. He immediately bursts into flames.

Robert Pattinson and Kristen Stewart win AGAIN for best kiss. But there's only a 2 percent chance they finally reward the audience with an onstage smooch.

Justin Bieber is carried away on a sea of fans, never to return. Lady Gaga sheds a single tear.

SO GONNA HAPPEN

Foxy Spice

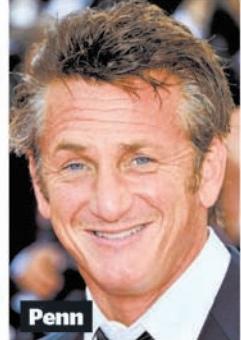

Megan Fox transformed herself—right out of "Transformers: Dark of the Moon," her former co-star Shia LaBeouf told the Los Angeles Times. "Megan developed this Spice Girl strength, this woman-empowerment [stuff] that made her feel awkward about her involvement with [director] Michael [Bay], who some people think is a very lascivious filmmaker, the way he films women," LaBeouf said. Rosie Huntington-Whiteley replaces Fox in the movie, filmed in Chicago and hitting theaters June 29.

ScarJo, Penn split

PDA-crazy odd couple Scarlett Johansson and Sean Penn have ended their fling, people.com reports. The romance between Johansson, 26, and Penn, 50, had given the tabloids plenty of fodder this spring thanks to their kinda gross restaurant dining habits (ScarJo's feet on Penn's lap), romantic getaway to Cabo San Lucas and public makeout at the White House Correspondents Association Dinner.
